

Inflamed minds, inflamed people

Cambridge, UK September 15th - 17th 2022

No more Zoom! An unapologetically face to face event in beautiful surroundings, grappling with some of the challenges of child neurology in the 21st Century. Rescheduled from 2020 and extended by half a day by popular request.

The EPNS Masterclass was instituted to address some of the practical dilemmas of clinical practice in the 21st Century. Building on the unique features of our first three Masterclasses, this is a small, interactive meeting with - where possible - delegates attending in pairs, a senior mentoring clinician and the leaders of tomorrow, to share and learn from each other in areas where often there are no easy answers.

As well as the world class clinical faculty you expect from the EPNS we have parents, ethicists, philosophers and researchers from disciplines you don't ordinarily meet.

Evidence and Emotion

The pandemic confirmed that medical controversy is alive and well. Groups take extreme positions on uncertain issues, accusing the medical establishment of conflicts of interest and ulterior motives. And we have to acknowledge valid criticisms: science is marred by publication bias, perverse commercial and professional incentives, and occasional outright fraud. "Science advances one funeral at a time".

Neuroinflammation is arguably the area of paediatric neurology where such scientific uncertainty and controversy is currently greatest: PANS/PANDAS, chronic fatigue, neuroborreliosis, "long COVID" and adverse effects of immunisation are all fundamentally debates about what clinical pictures neuroinflammation can cause. We will review the science behind neuroinflammation, neuropsychological and neuropsychiatric disease.

But the same dynamics build around all controversial paediatric neurology topics: cannabis, stem cells, dietary therapies and others. We will look more generally at how communities establish and grow, and most importantly, how to engage constructively with them. Faced with a parent convinced her child's problems are due to chronic Lyme Disease; that seizures will be cured by supplements, or a stroke by stem cells how do we respond?

Relationships can break down to the point that they threaten clinical careers. How do we prevent "digging in" and tribalism? How useful are systematic reviews and p values?

Can we also learn anything more generally about how to approach families passionately believing in what we think is mistaken pseudoscience? Speakers from the worlds of philosophy, journalism, cognitive science and behavioural psychology will contribute.
